ACKNOWLEDGMENT

We would like to thanks our Front-End Web Development teacher Ms. Neha Sharma for giving us this project work in web-development for designing and creating an interactive website.

"Travelo" is the name we have given to our website which is a web-based tour / exploration of Beautiful places across India and the world. This website includes a short and must watch tourist tour along with key information about some popular places of India and across the world.

This project is a complete mixture of Web-technologies HTML, CSS, JavaScript and JQuery combined together in a best possible way to provide users an awesome experience with user-friendly interface and navigation.

While designing and building this website we came across various reliable features and built-in methods provided by front-end web-technologies like CSS3, JavaScript and jQuery that really helped us to achieve such a milestone.

This project is a team work of following students of B.TECH CSE department at Lovely professional university

INTRODUCTION

Problem Statement :-

Nowadays everyone likes to spend some time in the beautiful places around the world. Everyone wants to get aside from the hectic schedule of their respective domains, like the students want to spend some time away from studies whereas the adults would want to free themselves from their respective work.

So there is a lot of rush of people to some of the common destinations around the world. Some of them are not able to book their respective tours due to heavy rush of tourists while some of them are not able to get proper hotels for their stay. This is the reason many people cancel their plans of their holiday visit and prefer staying at their homes, ruining the holidays of each and everyone.

Problem Solution :-

To resolve all this issue we are going to work upon a project in which we are creating a website for all the people named as "TRAVELO".

The website will contain multiple web pages which will provide information about the various tours and packages we give,the overall package information and the advance services for accommodation(booking of hotels).

People will be able to choose their preferred tour and book their holidays plan around the world, in a very easy way

Webpages :-
